MEMORANDUM FOR:
Assistant to the Director

SUBJECT : Scanlan's Literary House - Scanlan's
Monthly

1. According to "The Ramparts Story" by James RIDGEWAY published in The New York Times Magazine of 20 April 1969, Warren HINCKLE, who bolted Ramparts, now heads a group of New York reporters who are forming a publishing conglomerate called Scanlan's Literary House, with offices to be set up in New York, San Francisco, and Dublin, Ireland. It will publish Scanlan's Monthly. The only person mentioned, besides HINCKLE, as part of this conglomerate is Pete HAMILL, former New York Post columnist. As you know, Pete HAMILL used to be with Ramparts. RIDGEWAY, in reply to HINCKLE's letter to the editor, New York Times of 11 May 1969, stated that HINCKLE had asked him to write for Scanlan's Monthly.
